A Tribute to Our Benefactors

We have much to celebrate as the Columbia Museum of Art becomes that bigger, bolder, better nonprofit arts organization you so insightfully support. A successful capital campaign yielded the funding to renovate the CMA. After five years of planning and 14 months of construction, the CMA renovation is complete and the transformative project came in on time and under budget. An additional $1 million raised as undesignated funds was put into the museum’s endowment fund to help secure operations and maintenance in the future.

With the rolling out of a strong visitor-centered platform, the museum is already establishing itself as a refreshed, community-centered, welcoming, and vibrant attraction and resource in South Carolina. You told us what you wanted and now you have it — a special place to be inspired. Today, all can experience more galleries for art, more open hours, lower general admission fees, a modernized membership structure, a reinvigorated brand, a mobile friendly website, and for the first time ever, dedicated spaces for interactive learning and play.

The CMA is grateful to its many dedicated supporters — members, volunteers, donors, community partners, businesses, and foundations. Your continuing confidence and participation helped sustain the CMA throughout the construction project during fiscal years 2017 and 2018 and provided the sure footing needed for the museum to spread its wings.

In the next year, we plan to ramp up programming for adults, bring extraordinary art to the Midlands, travel parts of the CMA collection of art, continue building community and government partners, and look for every opportunity to be inclusive, welcoming, and to have fun. Much of this activity will land in the newly opened and completely renovated Boyd Plaza, courtesy of the Darnall W. and Susan F. Boyd Foundation, Inc., which will entice both locals and tourists to this beautiful Main Street District green space.

My father always said that you get what you give, and it is your gifts of time, money, ideas, and care that make the CMA a special place to be. Thank you.

FY17 and FY18 showed the strain of the final years of a successful Capital Campaign, a 14 month building renovation, and executive leadership transitions. Staff controlled expenses but revenue goals proved hard to achieve.

With the renovation project now complete mid-year FY19 — on time and under budget — and blockbuster exhibitions in FY20, the CMA aims to return to positive financial health.
